Dr. Milton Freidman,

I appreciate your comments, particularly your sharing those points on which our perspectives appear to differ. It is from such differences that I find the greatest opportunity for increasing my understanding.

In the next few weeks, I will include our "Conversation" (our combined communications) on the web site Claudia and I are setting up. As mentioned several times in the past, the purpose of sharing our communications is to open the conversation to others interested in the prospect of linking individualism and free-market economics.

I believe our Conversation will make a significant contribution to the web site's broader objective of addressing the idea of individualism within a philosophical context.

Best wishes,
Gordon
